Austin is an associate in Wick Phillips' Commercial Litigation Practice Group. His practice includes the representation of clients across a number of industries, including technology companies, oilfield services companies, construction companies, and private equity funds. He has significant experience advising clients in many aspects of litigation, including written discovery, management of large-scale discovery projects, and drafting and arguing dispositive motions in both state and federal court. As a member of the City of Houston's Volunteer Prosecutor Program, he tried eight cases to jury verdict.

Prior to joining Wick Phillips, Austin was an associate on the Commercial Litigation Team at Hunton Andrews Kurth in Houston.
