Wick Phillips Expands Intellectual Property Practice

Dallas, Texas, March 1, 2018 – Wick Phillips announced today the expansion of its Intellectual Property practice with former Conley Rose group. “The new team has an excellent and established reputation in representing clients in all aspects of IP law,” says David Drez, managing partner of Wick Phillips. “They will strengthen our IP practice and allow us to expand service offerings to our clients.”

The team includes senior IP counsel Clint Stuart, technical advisor Taylor Westbrook and four professional staff members who will be led by IP partner Jerry Harris of Wick Phillips. Clint is a registered patent attorney and specializes in patent preparation, prosecution, advice, and opinions in a wide variety of technical fields. Taylor specializes in patent application preparation, technical art evaluation and patentability analysis with technical experience in the mechanical and chemical arts.

UPDATE, March 21, 2018 – Kristin Jordan Harkins, who originally led the transition of this team to Wick Phillips and earned the highest professional and personal regard of those who knew her, has passed away. The IP team will continue Kristin’s stellar legacy by supporting clients with the same uncompromising care, quality and service.
