

Allison Fijolek

COUNSEL

Dallas

allison.fijolek@wickphillips.com

T: 214.740.4043

F: 214.692.6255

Allie Fijolek is a lawyer in the corporate section of Wick Phillips and focuses on the various aspects of corporate and securities law, investment funds, private equity, joint ventures, private securities offerings, and general corporate matters.

She advises fund sponsors, institutional investors, and investment companies on a broad range of matters, including forming, structuring, marketing, and operating private investment funds, addressing regulatory and compliance requirements, and making investments and co-investments into hedge funds, private investment funds, real estate funds, and other investment products.

Prior to joining Wick Phillips, Allie practiced in the asset management group of the San Francisco office of Ropes & Gray LLP representing investment advisers and institutional investors on various private fund formation matters, including with respect to investments, fundraises, operations, commercial and other negotiations, regulatory compliance, secondary transactions, and restructurings.

She has experience drafting, negotiating, and reviewing fund agreements, advisory agreements, offering materials, transfer and purchase documentation, side letters, wrap agreements for separately managed accounts, subscription documents, and commercial contracts, such as vendor engagement agreements.

All Practice Areas

- Corporate and Finance
- Corporate Matters
- Investment Funds
- Mergers and Acquisitions
- Private Equity

Education

- Columbia Law School (J.D.)
 - Harlan Fiske Stone Scholar
 - Managing Editor, Columbia Science and Technology Law Review
 - Teaching Assistant, Columbia Law School's Negotiation Workshop
- Stanford University (B.S., Science, Technology, and Society, with honors, with a concentration in Management Science and Engineering)

Admissions

- California
- Texas
- New York